

Program

During the conference, participants will be presented with the project, Nordic 0 - 24: Cross-sectoral collaboration for vulnerable children and young people.

Conference moderator Erik Aasheim.

Erik Aasheim has more than 35 years of experience as a journalist, Paris correspondent, author and moderator.

The conference will be interpreted in the Nordic languages and in English.

Excerpt from the program

Mind the gap! Nordic 0-24 collaboration on improved services to vulnerable children and young people?

- Researcher Inger Lise Skog Hansen, Fafo (an independent social science research foundation) presents the main findings from the evaluation of the 0-24 Nordic project

Completed education - the key to success and participation

- How can we – as professionals – support each other to help more children and young people succeed in school and training?

Panel with Anna Liljeström, who holds a PhD in Educational Psychology, together with Sweden's Municipalities and Regions (SKR) and three young people from the Swedish Plug-In project.

The crossprofessional cooperation - and its importance for children's participation

- Janne Hedegaard, who is Associate Professor and holds a PhD in Special Education, leader of the National Knowledge Centre for Exposed Children and Young People (NUBU)

Experiences and examples from the Nordic case in the project - what have we learned?

- Videos and interviews from all the participating countries and regions

Studio conversations

- How can the experiences from the project be taken forward to ensure better support and follow-up for vulnerable children and young people?